The Broadway Range by Sir Robin Day

Illustrious British designer Sir Robin Day has worked with Lister to develop the Broadway range, a modern interpretation of his classic café set that first appeared at the Royal Festival Hall in 1951.

Robin graduated from the Royal College of Art in 1938 and has won a number of prestigious design awards. He is best known for his injection moulded polypropylene stacking chairs—an icon of 1960s style. One of the most democratic modern designs of the 20th century, over 14 million chairs have since been sold 23 countries.

THE GREEN SECTION: FOREST STEWARDSHIP COUNCIL (FSC)

Gardenside and FSC: The beginning of a beautiful friendship

At Gardenside, we listen to our customers and incorporate their ideas whenever possible. Over the years, customers have specifically asked if we could provide an environmentally responsible yet economically viable teak furniture solution. This demand has led to our exciting new FSC certified teak furniture line.

Gardenside has the distinct advantage of being able to design, manufacture, and distribute its own furniture, making it possible for us to offer this exceptional FSC certified line. Consumers wishing to support healthy forests and communities should insist on the FSC certified label when purchasing wood furniture products.

The Lister Mendip 5" bench leads the product line. This bench, one of our most popular, follows the same look and design as our traditional teak bench, but is composed of FSC certified mixed source wood.

Other FSC certified products include the Rosevale 48" round table and the Dover dining armchair. Both stylish and functional, these products offer an environmentally responsible alternative.

Product Information

Our furniture is sub-assembled and shipped in carefully packed cartons, lowering shipping costs and reduces the risk of damage to your furniture. Benches and armchairs consist of four fully assembled main units: back frame, seat frame, left and right end frames. Mortise and tenon joinery provides easy and precise joining. Industry Standard Gardenside furniture provides an unequaled blend of ecologically harvested premium teak, design refinements, precision craftsmanship, and value. All of our products have been rigorously tested for strength, durability, and comfort. Our commitment to our customers, our products, and the environment is evident in every piece of furniture we produce.

Ecologically Responsible

The growth of teak wood is a natural process which benefits the environment. When plantation grown teak is harvested, a new generation of trees is planted and grown to maturity. The growth and harvest cycle continues, providing sustained and environmentally responsible land management. The natural process of growing teak does not require toxic chemicals or mining, and it doesn't the pollution associated with the production of plastic or metal furniture.

Durability

Teak is incredibly durable in all weather conditions. It's an extremely dense grained hardwood which resists rotting, warping, shrinking, and swelling. Its high natural oil content continually preserves the wood so it can be left outdoors for decades. How durable is teak? The first outdoor teak benches were made from the decking of old sailing ships. The teak on these ships was in such good condition when the ships were to be scrapped that the wood was recycled and used to build outdoor furniture. Public parks all over England are furnished with teak benches, some of which are close to a century old.

Care

Gardenside furniture is made from the highest quality teak. Unfinished and left outdoors, it will weather to a silvery gray patina (see photo). To many Gardenside customers, this natural aging process helps the furniture blend comfortably into its environment. Customers who prefer to maintain the rich color of new teak should apply a yearly layer of teak sealer (See Accessories, page 61).

Precision craftsmanship, rigid, tight-fitting mortise and tenon joints, and fine, smoothly-sanded components define all Gardenside products. These efforts combine to create virtually maintenance-free outdoor furniture.
